

WITH DELICIOUS TREATS AND A LITTLE PRACTICE ALL DOGS CAN LEARN NEW TRICKS

Play Dead ("Bang")

Used regularly in Hollywood movies. Makes for cute videos and a really neat party trick! You can use any verbal command, not just "Bang".

1. Have your dog lay down and kneel next to him.
2. Pet your dog's belly or gently nudge the dogs shoulder until he goes over onto his side. Say, "Bang" and give your dog a treat while he is still on his side.
3. Practice until you can motion toward the dogs shoulder, say "Bang", and he will flop over on his side. Eventually just pointing and giving the verbal "command" will result in a keeled-over pup!

Crawl On Your Belly

Teach your pup to scoot along the floor. A really cute trick, and definitely keeps an excited dog from jumping up when greeting!

1. Have your dog lay on a soft surface (like a carpet)
2. Hold a treat a few inches from your dog's nose so he has to stretch out to reach it. Keep your other hand with gentle pressure on the dog's shoulder so he doesn't stand up. Let your dog inch forward to reach the treat while saying, "Crawl". Give the treat to the dog once he/she moves forward.
3. Practice until you can hold the treat further and further out, eventually until you do not have to use your other hand. With repetition your dog will crawl to you on command!

Nudge / Push

Have you ever wished your dog could just scoot something closer to you? "Nudge" can be a useful tool or just a neat trick, and it's not hard to teach!

1. Place a big ball (soccer or basketball for larger dog, tennis or toy ball for smaller dog) on the floor in front of your dog.
2. Take a treat and show it to your dog, and then hide it underneath the ball
3. When your dog goes to sniff under the ball for the treat, say "Nudge" and lift the ball so he can get the treat.
4. Practice until your dog nudges the ball out of the way to get the treat. With repetition your dog will learn to "Nudge" when you tell him to!
